The global problem of refugees should be a great concern to the Church. In this 5th post in my diaspora missiology series, I want to raise your attention to this serious matter. While I use my country as an illustration, over 50% of the world's refugees are in Asia and 22% in Africa. How are we providing both a cup of cold water and the gospel of hope, found only Jesus, to the unreached peoples of the world--that migrate against their desires?
